

Bachelor of Arts in Critical Languages & International Studies

About This Program

The Bachelor of Arts in Critical Languages and International Studies provides foundational academic and professional preparation for students to develop linguistic and intercultural competence through the study of critical languages and their respective cultures. The curriculum is designed to maximize the success of both language learners and native/heritage speakers. Through experiential learning in language classes, as well as in more advanced courses in literature, culture, linguistics, business, and localization and translation, students are trained to be multilingual and intercultural. In addition to linguistic and cultural competence, students gain valuable skills in critical thinking, communication, and problem-solving. Our substantive program prepares students for success in an increasingly interconnected world, in fields such as the language services industry—interpreting, localization, and translation; education; research; writing, publishing, and the media; health, legal, and social services; business; government; international relations; the cultural heritage sector—museums, libraries, and archives.

Competencies

1. Upon graduation, students will demonstrate proficiency in listening, reading, speaking, and writing the language studied (communication skills, critical thinking skills).
2. Upon graduation, students will demonstrate intercultural knowledge and competence (social responsibility, global competence, critical thinking skills).
3. Upon graduation, students will demonstrate an understanding of course content knowledge (e.g., language, cultures, literatures, linguistics, and area/international studies) (disciplinary knowledge, critical thinking skills).
4. Upon graduation, students will be able to apply academic content and learned skills to real-world experiences by having participated in experiential learning opportunities (social responsibility, career preparedness, critical thinking skills).
