

Bachelor of Arts in English with Secondary Teacher Certification

About This Program

Like the Bachelor of Arts in English, the Bachelor of Arts in English with Secondary Teacher Certification (BATCH) provides students with an understanding of theoretical and analytical processes that enable them to assimilate a variety of textual materials representing many cultures and historical periods. Students will learn to read closely, critically, and empathetically, and they will become proficient at conducting scholarly research in order to produce clear and cogent arguments in both written and oral form.

In addition to training in English Studies, the BATCH offers a curriculum in pedagogy and clinical student teaching undertaken with the College of Education (the Educator Preparation Program, or EPP). Upon completion of the program and passage of the state-administered secondary teacher certification examination, BATCH graduates will be certified to teach 7th-12th grades in Texas schools.

Competencies

1. Upon graduation, English majors with a teaching certification will be able to interpret texts, analyze them critically, and locate them in historical context; they will understand significant critical methodologies and research methods, using them to interpret and advance an argument about a primary text.
2. Upon graduation, English majors with a teaching certification will have developed an understanding of writing as a rhetorical, context-specific, iterative process and will know how to give helpful, task-appropriate feedback to student writers.
3. Upon graduation, English majors with a teaching certification will be able to apply their content-area knowledge to develop curriculum, carry out instruction, and assess learning.
4. Upon graduation, English majors with a teaching certification will know how to use an inquiry-oriented approach to teaching to engage in reflective practices that develop their understanding of teaching and learning.
5. Upon graduation, English majors with a teaching certification will have developed the disposition of education professionals who prioritize fair treatment, concern for well-being, respect for individuality, and sensitivity toward students' cultural norms.
